Calls on the European Union Member States, sub-national governments and local Member organizations and those working in the field of biodiversity conservation to consider the appropriateness of promoting programmes to support private initiatives, and initiatives carried out by companies and conservation organizations, to create 'green jobs', which contribute to the success of the measures taken to conserve the protected areas included in the Natura 2000 Network through three types of action: research, training and employment and the integration of companies and organisations into partnerships to facilitate collaboration with the administrations responsible for the Natura 2000 Network.
